THE ADAMS BUILDING FIGURES IN EXCHANGE

Property at 1333-35 F Street Northwest Is Acquired by W. R. Hawkins.

The Adams building, 1333-35 F stree northwest, has been sold by Ross S Matthews to W. R. Hawkins, a deed transferring ownership having been recorded during the past week.

According to Reginald W. Beall of Moore & Hill., Inc., who negotiated the sale of the property to Mr. Matthews for the Willard estate several months ago, coal lands in Pennsylvania were given in payment by Mr. Hawkins Both Mr. Matthews and Mr. Hawkins are western Pennsylvania bankers. It is understood the building figured in the transaction at a valuation of about

The new owner plans to remodel the structure for use as the headquarters of an insurance company, Mr. Beall understands. The exchange, according to Mr. Beall, was negotiated by the principals themselves, no brokers having cipals themselves, no brokers having figured in the transaction.

The Odams building is a six-story structure of fireproof construction. It has a frontage on F street of 55.4 feet and is about 114 feet deep. For many years a portion of the lower floor has been utilized by the Washington Stock Exchange. The upper floors of the building were leased by the government, bureaus of the Department of Commerce and Labor having been housed there.

SITE FOR APARTMENT

Acquires Big Plot at Corner of Columbia and Belmont Roads.

Bates Warren has acquired nearly 19,000 square feet of ground at the southeast corner of Columbia and Bel mont roads northwest, with a view of erecting a seven-story apartment on the property. The sale of the ground was negotiated by Thomas J. Fisher & Co., Inc. Plans for the apartment are being prepared by Hunter & Bell, architects.

The ground acquired by Mr. Warren has a frontage of 135 feet on Belmont road and 128 feet on Columbia road. A portion of the property was owned by former Gov. William P. Kellogg of Louisiana.

The exterior of the building is to be of terra cotta and rough texture brick construction. The interior construction is to be of reinforced concrete, with fireproof partitions. The floors in the corridors are to be of tile and those within the suites are to be of quartered oak. All of the interior woodwork is to be finished in white and the doors are to be of birch.

A refrigerating plant is to be installed in the cellar and brine pipe will lead to a refrigerator adjoining the kitchen in each suite. The building is to be heated by the vapor system. Work on the structure is to be started within the The exterior of the building is to be

It follows as a corollary that if work can be undertaken throughout the year it will be performed at less total cost to the builder, and we may depend upon competition to reduce the cost to the owner. What applies to the business of the builder applies, with possibly less force, to the work of the architect. While the cost of professional services would be no more to the owner, under the present system of architects' fees, there would obviously be a greater profit to the architect if his office could be working at moderate rate and capacity throughout the year.

A general movement to increase the amount of work undertaken during the winter months has recently been started by prominent manufacturers of building equipment, who have called attention in forceful manner to the many advantages that accrue from the standpoint of all concerned when construction work is carried on without cessation during the winter months. The time is undoubtedly not far distant when building operations will go forward in all parts of this country with as great energy from December to April as during any other season of the year.
